Finishing Wood Flooring with UV Oil on a Production Line

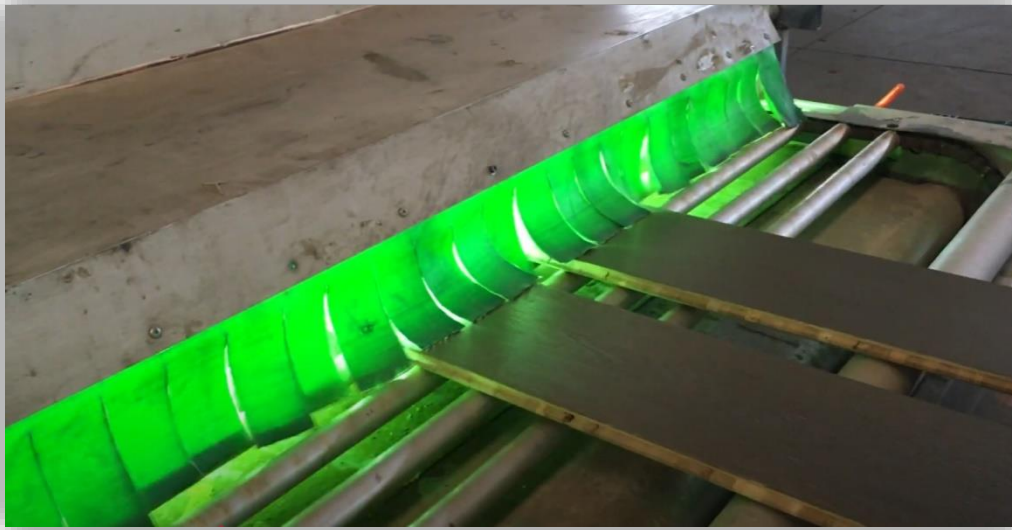

To completely seal the wood flooring, we apply seven coats of UV Oil. There are made up of a series of base coats, followed by several sealing coats and finally a top coat which are all applied accurately on the production line. We utilise the latest high intensity UV lamps to cure our UV oil flooring.

Each station has application rollers that apply accurate measured quantities of the base and top coats. Each of our finishing lines will have nine application stations as in some circumstance we use the same line for applying our Bona Commercial lacquer system that has nine coats. There is also a heating chamber in each finishing line to ensure that the boards are fully dry and in the perfect condition for packing.

The image below shows the full length of the line and a video can be found below this to show the speed of production and finishing.
